

Classical Plant Breeding at Johnny's

For over 50 years, our breeding efforts have concentrated on delivering crop varieties that perform optimally under organic farming practices. Most vegetable breeding in North America is geared toward large acreages in the primary commercial production areas. We focus on introducing varieties that meet the needs or solve challenges faced by mixed-market, small farmers and avid home gardeners.

These growers sow a wide variety of crops and likely won't have ideal soil or weather conditions in their local region to grow all of them, but they still want good yields of high-quality, flavorful produce. We aim to provide the seeds that will best help them do that.

The two keys to providing those seeds are our plant breeding program and our cooperators: breeders and seed producers of innovative vegetables, herbs, and flowers. We focus our plant breeding efforts at Johnny's on the niches left unfilled by our cooperators. Each year we grow and evaluate thousands of side-by-side trials of various crops to identify and offer the very best varieties to growers.
